VOL. XXIV. MIDDLEBURY COLLEGE, MIDDLEBURY, VT., DECEMBER 7, 1927 No. 11

LOUIS BROMFIELD TO LECTURE HERE TOMORROW NIGHT

Author Has Been Cited as The American Galsworthy.

"Things We Live Too Fast To See" will be the subject of the lecture to be given tomorrow night at the Congregational Church by Louis Bromfield, who has been labeled "The American Galsworthy."

Of all our present day novelists Louis Bromfield is probably the most typical of the spirit of America. For the last three years he has traveled over a large part of Europe. He has watched America from many points of observation, until he is thoroughly acquainted with this country's methods and ideals in comparison to French and English.

Most authors stumble and blunder their way to success, but Mr. Bromfield's career has in no way been haphazard. He possesses a cool clear judgment, and has not tried to rush into print. When given an opportunity to publish his first book, he declined with an explanation that he could improve it.

"The Green Bay Tree" is the most strikingly original of his novels. Although appearing first, it was his fourth novel. "A Good Woman" is a finer, maturer piece of work, but lacking a certain appeal. John Farrar has pointed out that "Early Autumn" is the most daring and complete portrait of decadent New England that has been attempted." "Possession" is also a significant piece of American literature.

Mr. Bromfield returned to the United States for two reasons: the presentation of his play, "The House of Women," a dramatization of "The Green Bay Tree," and for his lecture tour. On the lecture, which he claims is a by-product, he is speaking on three different subjects "Mr. Babbitt: the Man Who Had the World Wished on Him," "Things We Live Too Fast To See," and "Modern Imrpovement in Art."

Women to Debate at St. Lawrence Friday

Women's intercollegiate debating will open Friday night when Mildred Senecal '28 and Florence Porter '28 uphold the negative of the resolution that "This house upholds the United States' policy in Nicaragua" in a debate with St. Lawrence University at Canton, N. Y. Professor William Northrup Morse, who is coaching debating, will accompany the debaters to Canton.

MID-YEAR GRADES TO BE FILED BY REGISTRAR

Tentative numerical grades for all students taking full year courses will be filed in the office of the Registrar at mid-years as a result of a decision made by the faculty at its meeting last week. These grades will in no way affect the final grades of the year courses, but will be used as a file for checking up on eligibilities for extra-curricular activities, fraternity ratings, questions of probations, and other like matters.

The decision was passed upon recommendation of the Administrative Committee.

Fraternity Informals.

Saturday evening Delta Kappa Epsilon and Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternities gave house parties at their respective chapter houses.

Mrs. Mason, Miss Prudence Fish and Mrs. Yeaw were chaperones at the Delta Kappa Epsilon house. The Sigma Phi Epsilon house party was chaperoned by Miss Stoops, Professor Harry G. Owen, and Professor and Mrs. Griffin.

Election of Junior Week Chairman and Vice Chairman

Members of the Junior class will elect a chairman and vice chairman for their Junior Week committee at a meeting to be held tomorrow afternoon at 5:00 o'clock in the Warner Hemicycle.

The choosing of a member of the women's college as vice chairman of the committee is a new procedure, initiated by the class of '29. It is hoped that by so doing the committee can make Juinor Week more representative of the class as a whole. It will also facilitate the executive work of the committee.

M. I. T., TUFTS, OPEN DEBATE SCHEDULE

Other Contestants Include N. Y. U., U. of Oregon and U. of Porto Rico.

Active participation in intercollegiate debating will commence shortly before the Christmas recess, with two debates to be held on successive nights at Boston with M. I. T. and Tufts. On December fourteenth the Middlebury team composed of Pattee, Babcock and Leahy will uphold the affirmative on the question, "Resolved: That the United States should discontinue the policy of protecting by force of arms, capital invested in foreign lands except after formal declaration of war."

On the following evening, the subject "Resolved: That Congress should be empowered to enact uniform divorce laws," will be debated in which Middlebury will support the negative. The team representing Middlebury in these debates is an aggregation composed of veterans, all of whom made the trip last year.

A feature of the schedule is the debate with University of Porto Rico. Middlebury will debate them on successive nights on the same subject, the first to be spoken in English, the other in Spanish. Another attraction will be a debate with the University of Oregon. These men have begun an eight month's tour of the world, during which they will debate in practically all English speaking countries.

Soon after the opening of the new college year, open try outs will be held to determine the varsity squad for next semester. Any student in good standing of either college is eligible to compete. Under the supervision of Samuel Pattee a tentative schedule has been arranged for the successful completion of which enthusiasm and lively interest is necessary.

The schedule for the season of 1927-28 is as follows:

M. I. T. at Boston.
Tufts at Boston.
Trinity at Hartford.
Bucknell at Lewisburg.
Temple at Philadelphia.
Rutgers at New Brunswick.

M.'s All-Opponent team which included the members of the elevens from Harvard, Columbia, Tufts, Springfield, Norwich and Providence. "Chris" led the Freshmen Cubs in 1925, and is on the editorial board of the Blue Baboon, college humorous magazine. He is affiliated with Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity.

IT'S ALL OVER NOW.

The Damma Dammas have corralled their last freshman; the Zeta Zeta Zus have hand-clasped the fifteenth new Brother; the House across the street is triumphantly choiring "It's All Over Now," and once more the date parade to Pearsons is resumed. College is in gear again with seventy-four Freshmen no longer in the blissful state of neutrality.

With the close of another rushing week we naturally rehearse the deficiencies of the present system of selection. We venture to say that there are many bewildered freshmen, wearing nice shiny pledge pins who are just beginning to realize what last week was all about. They have been glad-handed, heard their high school records lauded to the skies, listened in close confinement to breath-taking achievements of the Fratta Booms, eaten countless meals, thrilled with their own possibilities as never before. It is all terribly unnatural, and superficial, but so firmly established that it is next to useless to offer abridgements.

To you who have accepted bids we offer congratulations. You have become one of a group you will harbor as your life friends. But in receiving this supposed honor do not allow yourself to become so firmly amalgamated in the Brotherhood that you lose sight of individual moral and educational goals. Ideals are in dangerous company in a fraternity house.

And you who have not received the desired bids, do not fall prey to an inferiority complex. Last year the student body cast a vote of 447 to 50 that it was no discredit to be a neutral. When Lindbergh was a student at the University of Wisconsin, thirty fraternities had an opportunity to invite him in, but none saw anything worth going after in this silent freshman, now a world-popular figure. Fraternities grind off the rough edges, reduce swelling heads, and in general lick men into shape, but licking all the Lindbergh's into shape would be disaster. The fraternity system does much good to the ordinary man, but it is hard to build a system elastic enough to fit the ordinary man and the extraordinary man as well.

The debate on the instituting of frequent vacations has many points on its negative side. For one thing it takes a student body about ten days to recover fully from such a period. That is why the days of rushing week were not declared national holidays back in Gamaliel Painter's undergraduate years. But after all, the aftermath of both is obviously similar.

There seems to be a decided lull in the announcements of student suicides. Have the newspapers found something else to lie about or has the fad passed? Can't somebody start something?

If many more societies are added to the Middlebury list, the Panther will have to sever relations with the Unions and adopt a forty-eight hour day.

The depression from Storrs avenue to College street having faithfully fullfilled its seasonal roles of football field, best local counterpart of Waterbury cellars and occasional path will soon function as tobaggan slide and skating rink.

Almost every day some one suggests some subject for an editorial which for various reasons is unsuitable for discussion in this column but which would make excellent material for a communication. The Campus would be glad to devote a column or more a week to communications from undergraduates, alumni and faculty.

Snowball season opened yesterday with the first thaw. Once more one puts his life in a precarious situation by innocently walking past the grammar school. And there will always be the grown-up college children who insist on making life in the vicinity of dormitories equally as uncertain.

BLUE BABOON REVIEW

We must congratulate the Blue Baboon for perspicacity if not for quiddity. The editors of the Thanksgiving number have effectively and permanently embarrassed all intruding critics by prefacing their publication with the following caption:

> You would not knock
> The jokes we use
> Could you but see
> Those we refuse.

Such a device reveals the editors as inveterate optimists, as a brave band of Diogensian searching for the elusive nymph, Risibility. Though their search is apparently no more successful than that of their namesake, their attitude makes criticism impertinent, for one has a natural hesitancy about suggesting to the missionary burning at the stake that the fire is warm. Only by perusing the material printed in the current Blue Babood are we enabled to imagine the tortures to which the editors must have been subjected in examining the literature which they refused. For this trial of the flesh and the spirit, they should earn our heartiest sympathy.

The classification of certain of the contents of the Blue Baboon as humorous literature reminds one of the old Elizabethan custom of endowing the word 'humor" with any one of a number of varied meanings. For example, the Elizabethan housewife might have spoken of the humorous family in the flat above with the deadliest intentions in the world. For in those days the adjective "humorous" could be applied with equal freedom to the melancholic or to the inane. Apparently present day usage of the word once more embraces both extremes.

We would not seem too severe. Humor is a wily animal and cannot be rudely taken. She goeth where she listeth, and if she does not happen to graze in our pastures, it will not avail us to cajol or to threaten. Humor is one of the few non-manufacturable necessities of life, only the divine spark will bring it into being. So perhaps we should not condemn the weak because they are not strong. Then too, as Sainte Beuve once said of the history of literature, "for every depression there is a corresponding swelling". Perhaps Humor is tired of gin and lipstick and sex. She may be waiting until her new garments have been fitted. D. S.

Rutland Herald Has Review of "The Intercollegiate"

We quote the following review of the "Intercollegiate" written by "H. L. H." of the Rutland Herald in his column entitled "peregrinations":

"Well, here comes the irrepressible Harold Bergman with another college or rather inter-collegiate publication, for that's its name and its 40-odd neatly printed pages are filled with contributions from Dartmouth, Harvard, Columbia, Hamilton, Wesleyan, Vermont and even Oxford and McGill grads and studes, as well as Middlebury, the incubator of Intercollegiate.

Berg still raves on about self-expression and does a little of it himself. He borrows an article from H. L. Mencken, has a good one from John Hurd, Jr., on Harvard, Dartmouth and Oxford, a razzing of the frat idea by one who evidently was not trapped, a discussion of the glee club movement by W. E. Woodruff of Wesleyan and H. G. Owen of Middlebury.

Elba Henry of The Herald staff defends the flapper and her shameless ways, Charles F. Malam has some poems, and there are a lot of borrowed and original contributions that make up an interesting table of contents, mostly for college guys.

A particularly amusing reprint is by Charles B. Driscoll, who tells at least part of why the floating university decided against co-educaton at sea. The same reasons, by the way, prevail against co-education everywhere, if you ask me.

An ambitious and worth-while effort, that deserves to succeed."

A CORRECTION

Prof .D. L. Robinson, who has presented a resignation to take effect next June, has been a member of the faculty since 1906, rather than 1908 as the headline in the last issue of the CAMPUS stated. He was an instructor for two years before entering the Modern Language department.

W. Storrs Lee represented Middlebury College at the Symposium of Religion held at Wesleyan University last week-end. The President of the senior class and editor of the weekly publication of twenty-five New England colleges were invited to attend. The report of the Symposium will be given in next week's CAMPUS.

Douglas, Ga.—(IP)—The student body of the State Junior college at Douglas is doing most of the work on the new dining hall being erected there, the students even making the bricks.

New York—(IP)—Superior intelligence is not a result of heredity, according to Dr. Raymond Pearl, who writes in the November issue of the American Mercury.

Dr. Pearl made an investigation into the parentage of 63 great philosophers, and found that they were all mediocre people, and under the plans of the present day eugenical sealots, would have been sterilized in many cases.

Yale Law School Announces New Plans

It was announced recently that the Yale School of Law is to inaugurate n experiment in legal education which is expected to have far-reaching results, it was learned here today, when Professor Robert M. Hutchins, Acting Dean of the Law School, announced plans to make the Summer session of the School on Honors session, wherein those admitted will be allowed to do independent work, individually and small groups, free from the regular routine of the classroom. Acting Dean Hutchins also announced a further stiffening of the entrance requirements for the members of the Senior class of Yale College who wish to combine their last year in the College with the first year of the Law School, and an increase in the tuition fee of the Law School.

In the future, the Summer session of the Law School will confine itself to Honors Courses for individual and group research work, and in effect, will be an Honors School. The plan will be instituted with the entering class of the next session, and when those who are now saving a year by attending three Summer sessions are graduated, the entire Summer session will be on an Honors basis. If then it is shown that it is possible to conduct the entire Summer session on an Honor basis, the plan may be extended to the regular sessions of the Law School, where now only high-stand third year men are allowed to do Honors work. Honors work is not carried on in any law school in the United States below the third year, and if it can be done successfully at Yale with beginners in the Summer session, and can be extended to the regular session, it is felt that a distinct contribution to American legal education will have been made.

Easton, Pa.—(IP)—Lehigh students are suspected of having defaced the monument of Lafayette, standing on the campus of Lafayette college here. The statue was covered with brown and white paint, the Lehigh colors. Lehigh student officials declared that if a Lehigh student was found guilty of the feat, he would immediately be expelled.

MUCH INTRAMURAL ACTIVITY PLANNED FOR THIS WINTER

Basketball, Handball and Winter Sports Games Scheduled.

Much activity in intramural sports is planned for the coming winter season. There will be regular scheduled contests between the fraternities and classes in basketball, handball and winter sports.

Basketball is now being practiced by all the fraternities. The schedule of games has not yet been released but there will be very little activity until after the Christmas holidays. The play system to be used will be the same as that of last year. Each team will play the same number of games, regardless of the number of wins; the team with the highest season average to win the championship. In case of a tie there will probably be an extra game; this will be left to the discretion of the teams involved. A practice schedule regarding the use of the gym by the fraternities has been posted.

There is no practice schedule for the handball courts, but use of them may be had by permission. Much interest is expected in this sport this season. Most of the outstanding stars of last year have graduated.

Fraternity standings in intramural activities so far are: Golf—D. U. winner, D. K. E., runner up; B. K. and K. D. R. tied for third; S. P. E., Chi Psi, A. S. P. and Neutrals tied for fourth. The tennis championship is still undecided. Hill, K. D. R., will meet Fuhter, S. P. E., early next spring to decide the title. A. S. P. and D. K .E. are tied for third.

Schedule for use of the gymnasium by the fraternities:

Mondays—
1:30 to 2:30 K. D. R.
5:15 to 6:00 Neutrals and D. S.

FOOTBALL SEASON NOT SUCCESSFUL

One Victory, Three Defeats, Two Cancellations and Protested Game.

The football season just ended has been the most unsuccessful that Middlebury has experienced in years with one victory, four defeats, and two games cancelled because of the flood conditions in Vermont. One of the defeats, that suffered in the game with Hamilton through an erroneous decision of the officials is under protest with the Intercollegiate Football Rules Committee. When action will be taken on this protest is unknown, and until such action is taken this game cannot be called a Middlebury victory, although the Blue eleven should be the winner by a 12-9 score.

The only victory now credited to Coach Klevenow's team is the 12-0 triumph over M. A. C. Defeats were suffered at the hands of Williams, Tufts, Hamilton and Vermont.

Throughout the entire season the Panthers were handicapped by an unbroken string of injuries. With a strong first string eleven but weak reserve material Coach Klevenow was confronted with a most difficult task when Captain Furbush, Jones, Bedell and Gollnick were injured in the first games of the season, the first two being out nearly the entire season. Notwithstanding these severe handicaps

HARGREAVES CUTS SQUAD TO 12 MEN

This Number Will Remain Until Freshmen Are Eligible.

The first cut in the basketball squad was made by Coach Hargreaves on Monday reducing the large number of candidates to a workable squad of twelve of whom four are letter men. This number will comprise the squad until the end of the semester when Freshmen will be eligible for the team. The letter men include Captain Sorenson, Collins, Spooner and Franzoni, with Henrdix, Saldutti, Maynard, Humeston, Casey, McDonald, Hoffman and Johnson as the remainder of the squad. Hendrix, Humeston, Maynard, Saldutti and Johnson have had previous experience as varsity players. Palmer, a letter man and an outstanding floor man last season, is out for the season with a chest injury received in football.

Coach Hargreaves is working with the squad hard to whip them into condition for the opening game with St. Stephen's at Annandale, N. Y., next week, Friday, Dec. 16. The following evening the Blue basketeers meet Manhattan in New York where they will spend the week-end, playing Temple University in Philadelphia on Monday and Brooklyn Polytech in Brooklyn, Tuesday, Dec. 20.

Cynical Account Of Middlebury-Vermont Encounter At Vergennes

The CAMPUS in its issue of November 9 printed a review of Middlebury-Vermont football history. The feature game being the one which ended in a fight at Vergennes. The CAMPUS quoted several passages from the Undergraduate, and as was pointed out, they seemed to be more partial to the Middlebury team than ordinary newspaper courtesy would permit.

If we are to believe an article in a current issue of the "Vermont Cynic" the CAMPUS was not nearly apologetic enough. It is quite evident from this article that Middlebury players were nothing but a "pack of howling animals" and that they possessed no sense of honor or fairness.

To quote from the "Cynic" (November 18, 1927):

"The third, last and deciding game was played on neutral territory—on the Fair Grounds at Vergennes, Saturday, November 6, 1894. This game went to Vermont by a score of 4-0 and undoubtedly would have been greater had not it been necessary to call the game to prevent a riot. Vermont played superb football. When Middlebury entered the second half she had a 4-0 defeat pinned on her. Sore from the beating of the first game and from the defeat so far given to her, Middlebury entered this half with an avenging spirit. It was not long before such a spirit was widely prevalent not only among members of the team, but also of the student body. To quote from the contemporary issue of the Cynic: 'It became more apparent when the ball had been rushed up the field and was near the side line, close to the Middlebury crowd, and had it not been for the police a free fight would have resulted from the cowardly attack upon Captain Woodward (Vermont.) The referee was unable to clear the field and so he called the game, making the score go back to the end of the first half.

"'A further quotation from an editorial of the same Cynic gives the attitude of Vermont toward the game.

"'There is little satisfaction in entering into any contest that calls for the exercise of courtesy with a pack of howling animals. They are beneath the feeling of shame, always eager to gain their ends by any means fair or foul. When the delegation from Vermont accompanied the team to Vergennes. . . . it was expected to see a game of football and not a riot . . . . . Almost incessant shouting of 'Kill Woodward!' 'Put him out of the game' came from the Middlebury bleachers. The spirit crystalized into action when the Middlebury crowd pitched upon Captain Woodward with

When Xerxes wept

THE great Persian ruler gazed from a hilltop upon his vast army of a million men. It was the largest army that had ever existed. And he turned away with tears in his eyes because in a hundred years all trace of it would be gone. That army was a symbol of power, destructive and transient.

Today in one machine, now being built in the General Electric shops, there is combined the muscular energy of two million men. This great machine, a steam turbine, is also a symbol of power—a new power that is constructive and permanent.

Its unprecedented size, a record in construction of such machines, is a pledge to the people that the electrical industry is on the march, ever on the alert to supply plenty of electricity at a low cost to all.

This mammoth steam turbine with a total capacity of 208,000 kilowatts (280,000 horse power) will be installed in the new station of the State Line Generating Company near Chicago. What a striking contrast between this huge generating unit and the group of home devices it operates—MAZDA lamps, fans, vacuum cleaners, and many others. Yet General Electric makes both.

PRESIDENT MOODY ADDRESSES VESPERS

"There Was No Room for Him at the Inn" Forms Text of Sermon.

President Moody spoke at vespers, Sunday, using as his text Luke 2:7; "There was no room for Him at the inn." President Moody said in part:

"Christ was born among strangers, died away from his natural surroundings and was, throughout his life, strangely homeless, with all the lonliness characteristic of the great leaders of men. Even now, it often seems that there is no room for Christ in our daily lives, in the worldly institutions of today.

"The things that differentiate us from the people of Christ's day are only external, however. Situations and persons may be found in the gospel similar to those we know. But the idea of Christ being publicly evident in the world today makes us uncomfortable. We have placed Him in a cathedral niche and we hesitate to take Him away from it.

"Many of us hide our companionship for Christ, thinking that there is no room for it in the busy activities of collegiate life. While thus, with a sort of cowardly secretiveness, we conceal our true religion, there are those among our friends who would be encouraged to know that we share their interests and their ideals.

"The cause of Christ is always promoted when men are not afraid to confess it. The things that touch God should be reserved for chapel services alone. There is room for Christ in college, even though there was no room for him in the inn."

Students Rendered Invaluable Aid In Flood Stricken Homes At Waterbury

The article printed below appeared in the Waterbury "Record" and the Burlington "Free Press" shortly after the Middlebury men who had been working at Waterbury had returned to their college activities. It is expressive of the gratitude and the "carry on" spirit of the people of Waterbury in their great disaster.

"Middlebury College students to the number of 150 have continued this week the splendid work of cleaning and rehabilitating the town begun by the University of Vermont men who were in town last week. In each case 150 students made up the invading party and the amount of work and real good that they have been able to accomplish, dividing up into small squads, has been beyond all hope or expectations.

"With nine-tenths of the homes in Waterbury flooded almost to the ceilings and in many cases several feet on the second floor normal living conditions in town before winter set in looked like a task impossible of accomplishment. But with the hearty, volunteer aid of these 300 men, by far the great majority of homes have been made at least habitable, and the families afforded a foot hold to carry on the work.

"Soon after the boys moved into town, the problem of cellars rose uppermost in importance, as being the place in each home hardest to clean, most likely to be left over, and in all likelyhood becomnig the most dangerous source of disease during the winter. The students, therefore, tackled the cellars with shovels, baskets and a lot of much needed muscle and enthusiasm and up to the present time have cleaned, fumigated and disinfected considerably over three quarters of the cellars in the town.

"At best this cellar cleaning is an odious job, and in cases where winter supplies of vegetables and all sorts of provisions have spoiled in a bed of thick river filth and sediment, and the only way in the world of cleaning the cellar was to carry it up the cellar stairs in baskets, these boys have shown a wonderful spirit in sticking to the job. In making the rounds of inspection of cellars to be done, when a fairly clean one must be like a bunch of roses, one inspector turned in a report yesterday of a house skipped because other cellars nearby were in a much worse condition.

"This wonderful help has been most appreciated by families having no men in their household and to whom the task of cleaning the cellar looked almost like an impossibility and all through the past two weeks it has been evidenced many times that the students have tried to help most those who need it most. Unknown tons of wet heavy mud have been removed from the living quarters of the people in Waterbury and the good will that these squads of students have established for their respective institutions will be an everlasting monument in this town to the generosity which has been so widely spread over the flood areas from those more fortunate. It has been real help when most needed.

"Others have been engaged in the strenuous work of cleaning debris and deposits of mud from the streets and generally cleaning up the town. Every man draws a man's job but the students have moved into town with their sleeves rolled up for work although their initial spirit of a lark soon wore off their efforts were none the less energetic and efficient and worthwhile."

Football Season Not Successful

the Blue eleven made a strong showing in every game, being the first team to score on the powerful, undefeated Tufts eleven, barely losing to Williams and dropping a hard-fought game to Vermont when the team came into its own in the last quarter of the traditional battle.

Eight veterans will be lost to the team through graduation this year, Furbush, Jones, Hinman, Gollnick, Whittemore, Palmer, Sinclair and Hendrix. The first five have been mainstays on the varsity for three years. The nucleus of the 1928 eleven will be made up of Webber, Bedell, Allen, Guarnaccia, Maynard, Huntington, McNary, McLaughlin, Johnson, Goltry, Tate, Ransom, Gruggel, and Willis, who was ineligible this season, besides the possibility of the Freshmen stars of this year.

It is only fair to say that the Undergraduate itself admitted that the Middlebury crowd "yelled and jeered in an uncalled for manner, and in this respect the Burlington crowd was much superior," but except on this one point the two articles seem to agree only in the fact that the other team was a crabby, complaining, and cheating team while the home team played nothing but the best football and that in a square and honorable manner.

The CAMPUS would be glad to see an unbiased account of the game if such exists and would be pleased to hear from any who saw or played in the game from either college.

SWIFT PLAYWRIGHT AWARDS PLANNED

Three Prize Dramas Will Be Presented at Playhouse.

Students interested in playwriting are reminded of the prize awards of $75, $50 and $25 to be given by Mr. Charles Swift for the three best plays written and produced by students in either playwriting or play production courses at Middlebury.

A prize evening will be held at the Dramatic Club some time early in the spring term and at that time the three best plays selected by the faculty judges from submitted manuscripts will be presented under the direction of the person who wrote the play or, if he prefer, some member of the play production course.

Each of these three plays will receive a prize, of twenty-five, fifty or seventy-five dollars, as decided by another group of judges. The success of the actual production will count fifty per cent at least in final awarding of prizes.

All manuscripts should be ready by the last of March. More completed rules for the contest and the names of these judges will be announced in the CAMPUS within a few weeks.

You'll like P.A.- and how!

OPEN a tidy red tin of Prince Albert and give your olfactory nerve a treat. Never have you met an aroma that had so much come-and-get-it. Some fragrance, Fellows. And that's just a starter. Load up and light up. . . .

Cool as final exams. Sweet as passing. Mild as cafe au lait— mild, but with that rich, full-bodied flavor that bangs your smoke-gong right on the nose on every fire-up. You'll like this long-burning Prince Albert in the bowl of a pipe. And how!

One of the first things you notice about P. A. is that it never bites your tongue or parches your throat, no matter how wide you open the smoke-throttle. It is one tobacco that never wears out its welcome. You can stoke and smoke to your heart's content, with P. A. for packing. Get some Prince Albert now and get going!

P. A. is sold everywhere in tidy red tins, pound and half-pound tin humidors, and pound crystal-glass humidors with sponge-moistener top. And always with every bit of bite and parch removed by the Prince Albert process.
